

Ben Souther

EFCOG Board Candidate Statement

Ben Souther is the general manager of the Environmental and Security business line of Bechtel's Nuclear, Security, and Environmental global business unit. Ben is an accomplished professional with more than 20 years of extensive experience and knowledge in automation, engineering, construction, delivery, and project management positions for Bechtel. His current portfolio includes the oversight of multiple government projects, operating sites, and national laboratories focused on nuclear security and nuclear waste management for the U.S. Department of Energy. Ben has proven experience leading strategic and operational planning, scheduling, cost control, coordination and implementation of construction and labor policies, claims, administration, and technical direction. Included in that portfolio is his global expertise working with a variety of international governments, private and public clients, and partners to produce tangible, reliable results.

As a member of the EFCOG Board, Ben is committed to supporting and ensuring the successful execution of DOE's mission by collaboratively bringing the best of our industry's experience and people to the forefront of EFCOG discussions.
